Mining Sector Veteran Joins FTI Consulting to Expand Australia Capabilities and Drive Operational and Digital Transformation Across the Global Mining Sector

SYDNEY, June 29, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- FTI Consulting, Inc. (NYSE: FCN) today announced the appointment of Dean Felton as a Senior Managing Director in the Transformation – Mining practice within the firm’s Corporate Finance segment in Australia.

Mr. Felton, who is based in Perth, joins FTI Consulting with more than 30 years of experience advising blue-chip and emerging-resource companies across the global mining and resources sector. He brings a strong track record of building high-performing advisory practices and helping mining organisations to solve complex strategic and operational challenges.

In his role at FTI Consulting, Mr. Felton will focus on helping mining clients improve capital discipline, accelerate performance improvement and harness technology-enabled solutions to drive sustainable value in an increasingly complex operating environment.

“Mining remains fundamental to global development, but the industry is under significant pressure to deliver stronger returns while navigating market volatility, cost inflation and technological change,” said Andrew Bantock, Global Mining Advisory Leader at FTI Consulting. “Dean brings deep industry insight and a proven ability to connect strategy, operations and technology. His appointment strengthens our ability to support mining clients as they transform their businesses and position themselves for the future.”

Mr. Felton’s experience spans corporate strategy, planning and development, major project feasibility and delivery, business integration, operational excellence and sustainability. More recently, his work has focused on digital strategy, including data, cloud and automation initiatives, the design and implementation of integrated operations centres, strategic reviews of commodity markets, and the application of capital intensity and value optimisation tools for large, diversified miners.

Prior to joining FTI Consulting, Mr. Felton was an advisor to senior leaders of a major global mining organisation. Before this, he was the Australian Metals and Mining lead at Accenture, where he supported major global and mid-tier mining companies on transformation, capital investment and performance improvement initiatives.

Commenting on his appointment, Mr. Felton said, “Mining leaders are under intense pressure to deliver stronger returns from existing assets while managing cost, productivity and operational risk. FTI Consulting’s approach of building a team with deep industry experience, focusing through the client’s lens on practical, executable transformation, strongly aligns with my experience helping miners turn strategy into tangible results. I’m excited to join the team and work with clients to drive improved performance and investment outcomes across their operations.”

The appointment of Mr. Felton builds on the growth of FTI Consulting’s Transformation – Mining practice in Australia following the recent additions of Carrie Grimes, James Chapman, Steve Dyson and Franz Wentzel.
