FTI Continues eDiscovery Software Leadership Position with Top Five Placements for both Attenex(R) Patterns(R) and Ringtail(R)

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 1 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- FTI Consulting, Inc. (NYSE: FCN), the global business advisory firm dedicated to helping organizations protect and enhance their enterprise value, today announced its recognition as a top provider of electronic discovery software and services in 23 categories of the 2007 Socha-Gelbmann Survey. The Attenex and FTI eDiscovery software offerings, well-established among corporations, law firms and global legal service providers, garnered 15 of the 23 placements. This is the third consecutive year Attenex has been highly ranked by the Socha-Gelbmann Survey and the second for FTI, the developer of Ringtail eDiscovery software, which recently acquired Attenex. The combination of FTI and Attenex is among the first mergers of two leading software developers in the eDiscovery and compliance market. Additional statistics and findings from the Socha-Gelbmann survey will be available in the August edition of Law Technology News.

"We are extremely pleased to once again be recognized by leading Fortune 500 corporations and AmLaw 200 law firms as a top choice for eDiscovery software and services," said David Remnitz, senior managing director and technology segment leader for FTI Technology. "The combined software products of FTI and Attenex, along with the unparalleled expertise of our consultants and global partner network, continue to set the standard for eDiscovery."

Attenex Patterns and Ringtail both have a proven track record of dramatically reducing the cost and risk of eDiscovery for Fortune 500 corporations and their law firms. This success has led to recognition in 15 different software categories, including top five eDiscovery software providers, top five eDiscovery software providers for corporations, and top five eDiscovery software providers for law firms. Additionally, one or both of the FTI offerings was recognized as a top five software for the processing, review, analysis and production of electronically stored information (ESI). FTI's consulting group was recognized in eight categories, including as a top five eDiscovery service provider and a top service provider to corporations and law firms.

"The results of our 2008 survey show FTI's solid position at the top of an elite cadre of companies offering eDiscovery technology products and services," said George Socha, founder of Socha Consulting LLC. "Our rankings are based on a detailed, independent model containing more than 350 qualitative and quantitative factors applied to 107 different providers."

A number of Attenex Advantage(TM) Partners were also recognized as top service providers in the Socha-Gelbmann survey results. The survey results come on the heels of the annual Attenex Advantage Partner Conference in Seattle, in which more than a dozen partners were recognized for processing and/or reviewing as many as 10 terabytes of data from July 2007 to July 2008.

The annual Socha-Gelbmann Electronic Discovery Survey, developed by eDiscovery pioneers George Socha and Tom Gelbmann, provides the most comprehensive view into the emerging and rapidly expanding eDiscovery marketplace. The survey comprises data from 115 organizations on the forefront of eDiscovery, including leading law firms and Fortune 1000 inside counsel.
