March 14, 2011

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 14, 2011 /PRNewswire via COMTEX/ --

FTI Consulting, Inc. (NYSE: FCN), the global business advisory firm dedicated to helping organizations protect and enhance their enterprise value, today announced that it expects to acquire from LECG Corporation (Nasdaq: XPRT) the majority of its remaining European operations. The agreement with LECG Corporation is subject to definitive agreements as well as the satisfaction of closing conditions. FTI Consulting has also entered into definitive agreements with certain key employees that will become effective immediately upon the closing of the agreement with LECG Corporation.

The agreement includes three LECG practice groups in Europe: (1) LECG's market-leading competition policy practice, including Dr. Jorge Padilla, with offices in London, Madrid, Brussels and Paris; (2) LECG's financial advisory services practice, including its forensic accounting, valuation and European-based international arbitration practices, based in London; and (3) LECG's tax consultancy group, focused on tax consulting and related valuation and transfer pricing services, also based in London.

Jack Dunn, President and Chief Executive Officer of FTI Consulting, said: "We are thrilled about the prospect of adding these practice groups to our already strong FTI Consulting team in Europe and the UK. The intellectual capital and technical expertise these outstanding professionals bring to our team strengthen our firm in three important ways. First, we will better serve clients on transatlantic mergers through our ability to offer clients a unified team of preeminent competition economists from both the United States and Europe. Second, we will deepen and strengthen our economic and financial advisory services in London, allowing us to better service existing and potential clients in a wide range of matters such as economic and financial regulations, disputes involving international arbitration, intellectual property, valuation, loss of profits and insurance claims issues and forensic accounting matters. Finally, we will expand our leading corporate restructuring and transactional advisory services with the addition of a new offering in corporate tax consulting."
